

Your end-of-day numbers — what each one means

Thirty seconds a night on your personal link. Every box has its definition printed right under it — this sheet is the same thing in one place, so everyone counts the same way. Everything is today only.

METRIC	WHAT COUNTS
Dials	Phone call attempts you made today. Every attempt counts — no-answers and voicemails included.
Pick ups	Dials where a human answered and you actually spoke, even briefly. Voicemails don't count. (Can't be more than dials.)
Sets	New sales calls you booked today — the prospect committed and a time was locked in.
New leads hit	Brand-new leads you contacted for the first time today.
Follow ups	Existing leads you re-contacted today (not first touches).
Calls on the calendar	First consults from YOUR sets that were scheduled to happen today — whenever you set them. Not your upcoming pipeline, and not "sets I made today."
Calls shown	Of those — how many prospects actually showed up. Follow-ups and second calls never count here. (Can't be more than calls on the calendar.)
Calls closed	Deals from YOUR sets that closed today — including deals that closed on a closer's follow-up call. A follow-up close still traces back to your set, so it's yours. That's why this number CAN be higher than "calls shown."
Cash collected ($)	Cash collected today from your sets' deals — including later payments on deals that closed earlier. Money lands when it lands; count it the day it arrives.

Four rules that keep everyone's numbers honest:

- Today only. Every box is about today — the form is a snapshot of one day, not your pipeline.
- Showing up vs. closing are counted differently. Follow-up calls and second calls never count in "calls on the calendar" or "calls shown" — those appointments belong to the closers' numbers. But a deal that closes on a follow-up DOES count in your "calls closed" and "cash collected," because the set was yours. Shows track the appointment; closes and cash track the deal.
- Cash follows the deal, not the meeting. If a prospect you set pays today — whether they closed today or last week — that money goes in today's "cash collected."
- Blank means "not reporting." Leaving a box empty is fine — it means you're not claiming a number. Typing 0 means "the real answer is zero." They're different.

What your form looks like now

Same form, same 30 seconds — each box carries its reminder, so you never have to guess what's being asked.

The form will stop you if the math can't be right (for example, more calls shown than were on the calendar) and tell you why — that's not an error on your end, it's the form catching a miscount before it hits the board.

One thing it will never flag: "calls closed" being higher than "calls shown." That's a real day — it just means a deal from one of your sets closed on a follow-up call.

Submitting again on the same day simply replaces that day's numbers, so a correction is just a resubmit.

SEQUENCEAI

The setter app is live — sign in with your email at sequ3nce.ai/setter

Demo Setter — end of day

2026-09-01 · already filed, submitting again updates it

Dials (phone call attempts today — every attempt counts, incl. no-answers)

40

Pick ups (dials where a human answered and you spoke)

10

Sets (new sales calls you booked today — prospect committed, time locked in)

3

New leads hit (brand-new leads you contacted for the first time today)

20

Follow ups (existing leads you re-contacted today)

5

Calls on the calendar (first consults from YOUR sets that were scheduled for today)

3

Calls shown (of those, how many showed — follow-ups / second calls don't count)

1

Calls closed (deals from YOUR sets that closed today — follow-up closes count)

2

Cash collected ($) (cash collected today from your sets' deals — later payments count)

5000

Anything else (optional)

probe

N

Update today's numbers

Your nightly form, with the reminders built in.